He began his career in 1997 as a ground hand at Ervin Cable Construction, a Dycom subsidiary. Over the next 26 years, Gresham rose through the ranks of Ervin's operational leadership, eventually serving as Vice President of Operations before transitioning to the Dycom corporate team.

"Bo's appointment as our first Chief Revenue Officer is a reflection of both where we are going and who we are as a company," said Dan Peyovich, Dycom's President and CEO. "The scale of the opportunities ahead of us in the digital infrastructure space is vast, and Bo's leadership will be instrumental in our next phase of growth. Furthermore, Bo embodies the Dycom spirit: starting his career on the front lines as a ground hand and rising to the executive team is a powerful example of the career paths available at Dycom. His deep operational roots and strategic acumen are an advantage in driving our revenue initiatives forward."

"I am honored to take on this new challenge during such a transformative era for our industry," said Bo Gresham.
